QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mark Horton

Many years ago I was taking part in a knock-out quiz competition, where by a series of minor miracles our team had reached the final. We need to get the last question right to force a play-off. 'Who wrote Beethoven's tenth Symphony?' When the rest of the team turned to me, the supposed expert on classical music, I pointed out that the great composer had only penned nine. Was it the right answer? I'll leave you to ponder that while we examine the deals from the first two sessions of the final between Lithuania and USA Luskys. Lots of tough questions would be posed – could the players come up with the right answers?

1♣ - '16+ or their value'

Pass - '0-5 or penalty of spades'

2NT - '4♠, good'

EW could not come up with the right answer on this deal, declarer easily recording 11 tricks for +150.

If East tries 3♠ over 2NT and West bids 4♣ would East's 4♦ see West advance to game?

I have a feeling that many of you will know my views about doubling with a balanced hand (especially opposite a passed partner), so I will not dwell upon West's contribution to the auction.

East led the ♠9 and West took the ace and switched to the ♥Q. Declarer won and ducked a club, West continuing with the ♥J. Declarer ducked and when West went back to spades he cashed his winners for +600.

As you can see, East needs to find a unlikely diamond (or heart) lead when West can win and switch to the ♥Q. Interestingly when I gave the hand to the man on the Clapham omnibus he went for a heart!

North had a close decision over 3♣ - are you surprised he was not seduced by the lure of a vulnerable game.

With only two flat boards it had been a combative set, Lithuania taking it 47-29.

By contrast, the second session saw points change hands on only five deals. These were the two that really mattered:

North led the ♣10 and declarer won with the queen and played a spade to the nine. When it held he continued with a heart to the king and a spade for the queen and ace. Three rounds of hearts followed, a diamond going from dummy as North ruffed in. That meant 11 tricks, +650.

Aside from the obvious risk involved in leading away from a king, a diamond lead should defeat 4♠. South wins, cashes a second trick in the suit and then switches to a club.

To answer the question I posed earlier, Beethoven's 10th symphony was usually attributed to Brahms. However, it later transpired that Beethoven had sketched out the idea of another symphony before his death in 1827. That gave rise to Beethoven X: The AI Project which you can read about it at www.beethovenx-ai.com.

BATTLE FOR BRONZE

Marek Wójcicki

In the last round of 3RD PLACE SWISS at table one leaders – CANADA CZYŻOWICZ (137.55 VP) met POLAND MARKOWICZ (137.61 VP). POLAND AMBER BALTIC, currently third, had 134.48 VP, while the next competitor was at some distance – 128.27 VP, so it looked that most likely one of those teams might win.

The Canadian team did not qualify to play offs and in the Swiss they advanced from 23rd place (7th from non-advancing teams) to the top. The Poles could be on quite different wavelength – they lost semifinal in very last board.

At first board Włodek Starkowski showed excellent card reading:

East led ♦J. Queen from dummy and West won with the king and returned ♦4. East ruffed and to make partner's life easy played careful ♣9. Ten from dummy, ♣2 from West. Declarer won with the ace and cashed five round of spades (both opponents retained three hearts), entered dummy with ♦A and played ♥10, won by East with the jack. East exited with a club, declarer ruffed the king and had to lose two more heart tricks.

Two down, 100 for POLAND MARKOWICZ.

Here also East led ♦J, declarer finessed. West won and returned ♦2 (this suit preference card located ♥A at East hand). East ruffed and played ♣5. When the ten from dummy was covered with the king, declarer got his chance. He won with the ace and played all the trumps. East discarded three hearts and a club, but when declarer played a diamond to the ace, he was caught with squeeze. He had to keep two clubs, so he left the bare ace of hearts. Włodek played a heart, ducked in hand and the contract was made.

You are sitting East (red vs white) with:

After your pass partner opens 1♠. You responds 1NT and he rebids 2♣. What is your bid?

Life is hard... You cannot bid 2♠ with singleton, for 2NT you lack 1 or 2 points and a heart honor, for 3♣ or 2♦ one card in the suit...

Who is to blame? Should West rebid 3♣ or 2NT? Both those bids surely are not from the text book. 3♣ forces to game, but after that rebid heart fit can be easily missed. Looking at this accident I understand why so many top pairs started to use some versions of Gazzilli (World No 3, Jacek Kalita told some time ago that this is the most important convention of his system).

May be with East hand 2♦ was lesser evil?

In open room West, playing Polish Club opened 1♣ (11-13 balanced, natural, 5+♣, 15+ HCP or strong, 18+HCP, any).

North made a full use of vulnerabilities – 1♠ was a nice attempt to steal the board, but it did not make life very hard for East/West as East had easy way to show his strength and distribution.

Club was led and declarer had 10 easy tricks. +630 and 11 imps for POLAND MARKOWICZ.

POLAND MARKOWICZ won the match 44-15 imps, gaining 17.68 VP. It was much more than enough to win 3RD PLACE SWISS. Second place for SWEDEN after 39-0 in last match against BELGIUM, third for AUSTRIA who won at second table with POLAND AMBER BALTIC 13.43-6.57

HOW TO OPEN OR DOWNLOAD BBO FILE OF THE MATCH

In 2021 BBO files of the matches were easily accessible directly from the website of the tournament. Now BBO works only through browsers, not in the client/server mode and it is slightly more difficult.

We received some questions from tournament participants how they could find BBO files (*.lin) of the matches. It is possible, I dare say even quite simple. Here is step by step instruction:

1. Website of the tournament
<https://r.pzbs.pl/2022/tsc/web/> should be entered.
2. „RESULTS” tab should be clicked
<https://r.pzbs.pl/2022/tsc/0/>
3. „ROUNDS RESULTS” should be chosen:
<https://r.pzbs.pl/2022/tsc/0/#0000000001001002000000000>
4. Round number should be clicked.
5. Appropriate match should be chosen and scores of the second part should be clicked:

7. Then you will be able to see match scorecard with link to each board at each table
